TO OPEN NEW GYM TUESDAY

$110,000 COLLEGE BUILDING IS NEARLY COMPLETED.

REGENTS WILL MEET

Board to Formally Accept Structure Monday—Formal Opening to Be Held This Fall.

The new $110,000 gymnasium of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College will be completed this week and formally opened for inspection from 4 to 7:30 o'clock next Tuesday.

The Board of Regents of the College will meet here Monday to accept the building.

The grading around the new building and the completion of the sidewalks remain unfinished but will be completed within a short time.

The opening next Tuesday is to give students an opportunity to see the new gymnasium, but the general public is cordially invited to inspect the building between the hours mentioned. The formal opening, however, will be held sometime later in the fall.

The new red brick structure measure 107 by 111 feet and is made to harmonize with the other buildings on the campus. The cornices and trimmings are of Carthage stone. The "towers" of the administration building of the College are somewhat duplicated in the slight projections of the walls at the corners of the new gymnasium.

The main entrance of the gymnasium and administration building are somewhat alike. The lamps to be used in the front are similar to those at Residence Hall. From the entrance on the east the corridor leads to the playing floor and other parts of the building. The offices of H. Frank Lawrence and Paul Jones, athletic instructors, will be to the left of the corridor. The "M" Club room will also be on this side. The offices and rooms of the women's physical education department will be on the right of the corridor.

The playing court on the main floor will be 50 by 90 feet, full regulation size. The room measures 80 by 110 feet and seating capacity is provided for 1,800 to 2,000 persons. The balconies are eleven feet high and three feet back from the playing floor. Three feet on each side and ten feet on each end are provided for out-of-bounds space. The distance from the floor to the bottom of the trusses is 22 feet.

The second floor adjacent to the balcony on the east contains an office examination rooms, and class rooms for physical education.

A swimming pool, 20 by 60 feet, is in the basement of the new gymnasium. The pool is finished in white tile, sides and bottom, with the depths of 4½, 5, 6, and 9 feet worked in black in the tile. A springing board is provided on the south end. A walk around the pool is also finished in white tile. The pool holds 50,000 gallons of water which can be heated and will be filtered, purified and changed every ten hours. A gallery for spectators has been provided on one side of the pool.

A hand-ball court and the boiler room adjoin the pool on the north. Men's showers, locker and check rooms are on the south side of this floor and similar rooms for women are on the north. A laundry and drying room adjoins the central corridor. Showers for the visiting team are also provided on this floor.

Jefferson City, July 30.—The largest road letting of the year will be August 28 when B. H. Piepmeier, chief highway engineer, will receive bids for 175 miles of road, mostly concrete. The present plan of the state highway commission calls for the completion of highway No. 2 between Kansas City and St. Louis as well as highway No. 3 passing through Pettis and Saline counties.

The highway commission is meeting in St. Louis today to approve contracts for the construction of 123 miles of roads, estimated to cost $2,400,000.

STARTS WITH GOOD LECTURE

1925 CHAUTAUQUA GETS OFF IN FINE SHAPE.

TELLS LABOR ISSUES

Dr. Ben Wilson, Lecturer, Pleases Large Audience By His Discussion of Present-Day Problems.

PROGRAM TONIGHT.

8 o'clock — Concert by the Rainbow Orchestra.

PROGRAM TOMORROW.

2:30 p. m.—Prelude by the Ridgeway Entertainers.

3 p. m.—Style Revue — Mrs. Mabel Burns.

8 p. m.—Entertainment, Ridgeway Trio.

8:30 p. m.—Entertainment by humorist, C. E. Burgderfer.

The Rainbow Saxaphone Band and Orchestra, the entertainers who furnished the prelude this afternoon were entitled to the applause they were accorded. But compared to the treat brought by the speaker of the afternoon, their offering was only incidental. It was Dr. Ben Wilson about whom the people were talking as they streamed from the big tent this afternoon. Some agreed with him—perhaps the greater number. Some did not. But that he furnished food for thought could not be doubted. He may have frightened some. America is a haven of peace compared to the picture he presented of the mind of England. He may have hurt some. He was emphatic in his attack upon old lines of thinking. But whatever the effect of his address, it was kindly intended and solidly substantiated.

The big tent arrived last night and by noon today the crew of the college men had the "Big Top" in place on the high school grounds and was ready for the afternoon program.

Six young men from colleges in Iowa and Missouri, compose the tent crew that will tend the tent and be in charge of the gate and reserved seats. Herbert Hulse, one of the tent men, was a member of a chautauqua crew that was in Maryville two years ago.

The young men and their colleges are as follows:

W. F. Hodges, Jr., of Culver-Stockton, Canton, Mo.

Harry Woods, Western Union College at LaMars, Ia.

Ray Hilser of Drake University, Des Moines.

Everett Taylor of Cornell.

Herbert Hulse of Cornell.

Giles Mathews of Westminster College, Fulton.

Dr. Wilson did more than talk about the English Labor party. He lifted his audience from the comfortable environment of Maryville and put it down in the disquiet of England. He routed the Maryville public mind temporarily and put in its place the mental attitude of a people compelled to a new interpretation of life. He substantiated circumstances which have molded the detrimental life of English labor, for the placitude which has nourished American existence for several years. He did that and then presented the people whose cause he has championed over on the other side of the Atlantic.

It was the lecturer as well as the lecture who left Maryville wondering about many things. The moment he took the platform it was evident why Ramsay MacDonald headed the English government for a brief period. A more timid speaker would not have tried to give the address. He hid nothing. "We might as well tell the truth for a change," he said again and again and each time he told what he thought the truth and what he made the greater number of his hearers think was the truth. He championed modern thought. He championed the younger generation. He championed religion in its newer endeavors.

His talk was not propaganda for English labor. It was not a talk gleaned from books and glistened with oratorical gems. It was a straight-from-the-shoulder address growing from experience and rich with dynamic force. Mr. Wilson is humorous, he is human, he is sincere.

He told of hundreds of meetings which are identical in spirit, held every Sunday by an extremely earnest people in the British Isles. He pictures those meetings, some of them gatherings of a few hundred, some gatherings of many thousands, but all bent upon one purpose. And that purpose is represented

Young La Follette's announcement came a short time after his mother announced she would not be a candidate to succeed her husband.

The classes will be held in the junior high school building here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Raines drove to St. Joseph this afternoon and the former went on to Kansas City to attend a meeting of the State Board of Optometry.

TO REST WITH WAR HEROES

BUT NO MILITARY POMP AT BRYAN FUNERAL.

IN "COMMONER" ROLE

Invalid Widow Wishes Famous Husband To Be Buried As "Private Citizen"—Services Tomorrow.

Washington, July 30.—William Jennings Bryan, the commoner, who devoted a good part of his life to the cause of peace, will be buried among the military heroes in Arlington in his favorite role as an "apostle of peace."

To this end, his grief-stricken invalid widow, dispensed today with virtually all of the military honors that were his by right and which it had been planned to accord to him tomorrow when his body is placed in its final resting place.

There will be no artillery caissons and rhythmic tread of infantry to accompany his body from the capital to its final resting place. Shortly after her arrival here this morning, Mrs. Bryan was informed that the war department stood ready to furnish these trappings of rank and imminence, but Mrs. Bryan said she did not want them. She wanted, she said, the commoner to be buried as a private citizen. Her wishes were readily granted by those in charge. Consequently, when the body of the dead leader is borne tomorrow from the New York avenue Presbyterian Church, "the church of Presidents," it will be in a private hearse without other than the necessary escorts to clear the way to the gates of Arlington.

Only inside the gates of the cemetery will there be anything approaching military honors and this will be held at a minimum. Even the usual salute of rifles over the grave will be dispensed with. Only the beautiful strains of taps [illegible] out from the green knoll of Arlington as the body is lowered to the earth.

These arrangements completed today, Mrs. Bryan retired to the seclusion of her hotel, worn out by the strain of the long trip from Dayton.

Soon after her arrival, Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, late candidate for vice-president, arrived at the hotel to comfort her. Weary as she was, the invalid spoke feelingly of the reverential tributes paid her husband on the long trip from Tennessee. At Jefferson City, Tenn., a quartet sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought."

"It was his favorite hymn," she said.

Thugs Kill Laborer; Wrong Man Is Victim

Two Foreigners Climb Fire Escape, Enter Apartment and Beat Man to Death With Hammers.

New York, July 30.—Armed with hammers, two men climbed the fire escape and entered the apartment of Louis Leonardi, 32, a laborer, and beat him to death early today, while his wife looked hopelessly on.

After they had killed him, one of the thugs exclaimed in broken English:

"My God, we have got the wrong man. This is the wrong apartment."

May Sue for Part of Gant's Insurance

Kansas City, July 30.—Refusal of Mrs. Joseph Gant, widow of the defaulting president of the wrecked Centropolis Bank to turn over $15,000 of insurance left by her husband probably will force the depositors' committee to bring suit to recover it. Commenting that it was the money of the poor working people who lost it, the chairman of the depositors' committee said that legal action was the only recourse.

The minimum temperature last night and early this morning was 54 according to J. R. Brink's thermometer.

this State where Vocational Agriculture was taught, with an enrollment of 109 students. For the past school year there were 93 schools, as stated above, with an enrollment of approximately 2400 students. The Director now has on his desk several additional applications for this work for next year from schools located in various parts of the State.

Reavis points out the fact that the Federal Act known as the Smith-Hughes Law provides special aid for Vocational Education, provided the states appropriate a like sum to match the Federal subsify, and that this law is so drawn that the amount of Federal aid increases from year to year until 1926. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, the Federal Government set aside $194,357.98 for Vocational work in Missouri. Of this amount [illegible]376.87 must be expended for [illegible]l Agriculture, $73,645.63 for [illegible]l Home Economics and Trade [illegible]ndustrial Education, and $32,335.48 for the training of teachers for Vocational work and for supervision.

The recent session of the Legislature provided sufficient funds to match the State's allotment of Federal funds with practically no opposition, which indicates that Vocational Education is growing in popularity among the people of this State.

Reavis is of the opinion that Vocational Education meets the demands of the "modern ideal" of Education in that it prepares the farm boy for the responsibilities that are just ahead of him in a very satisfactory manner, and helps him to develop initiative, ingenuity, resourcefulness, and self-reliance, and prepares him to shoulder responsibility. Reavis says that the boy who repairs farm machinery, makes an incubator or a wagon bed will have problems to solve and questions to answer and will receive the type of training that will fit him for the real responsibilities of life.

Hobbies of the Great and Near Great in American National Life

Editor's note—This is the ninth of a series of intimate sketches which reveal the national political figure as a "brother under the skin" to the man behind the plow, the white collar worker or the day laborer. Others will follow.

HIRAM W. JOHNSON

A brand new hobby has won the interest of Senator Hiram W. Johnson (R., of Cal.) away from his assaults upon foreign entanglements, cooperation trusts and reactionary politics.

Famous the world over for his political achievements, which stopped just short of the Presidency, Senator Johnson has recently sought success in a brand new field—that of yachting. In an effort to qualify as an amateur yachtsman the Senator has completed a 5,000 mile trip in a 95-foot yacht, from Key West, Fla., to San Francisco, via the Panama Canal. Now he yearns for wider seas to conquer, for yachting has become his principal hobby.

The Senator put into that yachting trip the same grim determination and positive effort that mark his political campaigns. He started from Key West on March 28, with his son, Hiram Johnson, Jr., and the latter's wife. For seven weeks he lived aboard the yacht, sailing through the Panama Canal and visiting a half dozen South American republics. He landed in San Francisco on May 20, tanned brickred and swearing by all the salt in the sea that yachting really was the only life. It is whispered now that he dreams of crossing the Pacific in his little boat.

Owns Colonial Mansion.

Whatever his future achievements as a seaman may be, the Senator will never lose his love for the Johnson home just outside Washington. This great Colonial homestead—the famous old Calvert mansion at Riverdale, Md., was purchased by the Senator a decade ago, and he spends every hour on it that he can spare from his Senatorial labors. The mansion was built in the eighteenth century, and is of Colonial architecture.

It is famed for historic associations. Through its stately hallways have trod such American heroes as George Washington and Thomas Jefferson. In its great living room these "Fathers of our Country" discussed Colonial politics with the first Calvert. In the snug library Henry Clay worked out the Missouri Compromise. Beneath its roof General Lafayette came often to partake of Colonial hospitality.

Romps With Children.

Over the broad lawns of Calvert the Senator loves to romp with his young grandsons—Hiram the 3rd, aged eight, and Philip, a young man of ten. One of his delights is to play "hide and seek" with the two youngsters around the great bushes and trees on the lawn. A visitor can hardly recognize in this playmate of children the same man who riveted the nation's attention by his smashing attacks on corporation trusts or his desperate, but successful, assault on the League of Nations.

In the evening Johnson reads, or operates a miniature moving picture machine for the entertainment of the Johnson family. He will grind the crank for a six-reel feature and a two-reel comedy with just as much mechanical skill as a member of the union. In the movie field he loves the "Covered Wagon" and the "Thundering Herd," getting both films for his home after first seeing them in public theatres.

Fond of Dogs.

The Senator also loves dogs. His own dog is "Spartan," an Airedale, but he greatly admires all four-footed pets. Of "Spartan," he says: "He's a one-man dog, and I'm a one-dog man, therefore we are devoted friends."

A minor hobby is Johnson's love for baseball. He's a real fan, sharing his loyalty between the Washington Senators and the San Francisco club of the Coast League. This summer he is visiting his San Francisco home, so his patronage goes to the Far Western club.

Tomorrow—Carter Glass.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—A national religious fight—in Congress—threatens now.

It was with a view to starting one that L. H. Wittner, Washington government employe, launched his suit to tie up the pay of District of Columbia educators who teach the sciences. All of them, he says, are disrespectful of the Bible—if one accepts it literally.

Wittner submits that:

The Bible says the world was made in six days. Geology says not.

The Bible says man was specially created. Biology says he was evolved from a lower form of life.

The Bible says the tongues were confused to stop the building of the Tower of Babel. Philology tells a different story.

The Bible says the Creator set a rainbow in the sky. Physics accounts otherwise for rainbows.

The Bible says Joshua made the sun stand still. Astronomy denies it.

The Bible says water was turned into wine. Chemistry says it can't be done.

Now Congress, in making its last appropriation for the District of Columbia public schools, forbade the use of any of the money to pay instructors who teach "disrespect of the Holy Bible."

Wittner asserts that's just what all the scientific ones are doing. As a taxpayer, he wants their salaries stopped.

Neither a fundamentalist nor a scientist, he explains that his suit's purpose is to force the issue of "church and state." He charges that the former is getting increasingly officious in the latter's affairs. He aims to put an end to it, if he can.

Old-Age Pensions

IRA NELSON MORRIS, President, Pro-to-Sam's Years, Washington, D. C.

Old age pension systems are now in effect in a number of countries, and are strongly urged in this country by the Fraternal Order of Eagles, which is making work for this reform one of its principal activities. The labor unions, as a rule have held aloof from agitation for this particular innovation in our governmental system, and of course the usual opposition, that it is socialist in character, has been raised.

Dr. Tozzer, of Harvard University, a distinguished anthropologist, calls attention in his latest book, "Social Origins and Continuities," to the rapidly changing status of the family—which is something quite unlike, today, what it was when it first came into existence as an institution—and Algernon Sidney Crapsey, in 'The Rise of the Working Class," has pointed to the surprisingly fallen estate of the father, who once had power of life and death over the patriarchal family, but who now by comparison counts for title. Mr. Crapsey suggests that until recently a large family was an asset, and that children aided in the support of their parents' old age; but now parents can not count in the least upon any such support, except in a few states where it is made compulsory, and then any attempt to bring up children institutes, in his words, "a loss investment."

Industry has little use for a man past middle age, and to ameliorate the harsh conditions that face them (according to statistics widely distributed by banks and insurance companies, the majority of men at 65 are on the edge of poverty) the old age pension plan has been proposed. Its success or lack of it abroad, perhaps is no criterion of its possible success here, and in any event there is no opposition to it.

Undoubtedly there should be something done to alleviate the hardships modern industrial organization brings upon the aged, but the old-age pension is by no means the only proposal that has been advanced.

Is the old-age pension, however, preferable to other methods of dealing with the problem?

YES

1. It does not constitute charity. The man who has done his share of the world's work in the productive years of his life ought not, certainly, to be thrown out of employment in his old age, with no redress of any kind. Industry is not yet committed to the idea of paying a living wage, much less a saving wage, and until that condition of "parasitic industry" is remedied, there must be considerable numbers of men who will approach old age with insufficient resources for their declining years. They do wish to accept charity, and the old age pension, offered as a right in consideration of their past service to society, offers a way out.

2. It is vastly preferable to the almshouse or similar institutions, for in the old-age pension the acceptance of aid carries no social stigma as it does, and man's declining years are embittered by loss of self-respect. Society must make some provision for the unfortunate, and that means which injures them least should be preferred.

3. Old-age pensions are common in Europe, and have been introduced to some extent in industry here. But in dustrial old age pensions present a large element of chance, for employers adopted the plan uniformly have no means, and, moreover, some by a "pension" schemes are more "ob" as advertisements for a com- than as instrumentalities for the fit of the workmen. It has been tomary in some establishments to fire" men shortly before they would become eligible for a pension.

4. The national old-age pension would eliminate the injustices of industry (particularly those enumerated above) and would rob old age of much of its terror. It is not entirely a matter of shiftlessness by any means that so many men and women lack the means of self-support after they are past the age when they are wanted in industry. Chance figures largely in the matter.

NO

1. The old-age pension is a mere palliative. It is an attempt to evade the problems presented by modern industrial organization, rather than to solve them. It would ameliorate conditions, no doubt, for some superannuated workers, but it would not remedy the causes that lead to those harsh conditions, but would, by making them less noticeable, rather tend to perpetuate them.

2. Labor unions for a long time held out against old-age pensions on the ground that union organization ought to be able to win sufficient pay for members so that "saving wages" would result, and pension systems would be unnecessary. Even today the American Federation of Labor, though officially on record in favor of old-age pensions, is not particularly enthusiastic about them.

3. Old-age pensions are usually granted as a means of preventing demands of more drastic character. Bismarck granted them in Germany in order to prevent complete socialization—or, at least, to quiet the appeal the Socialist made to the workingmen. Now the British Conservatives have advanced an old-age pension proposal. Such schemes are insincere and not in the workers' interest, as a rule.

4. Thrift, properly practiced, will do away with need of pensions, as a rule it is better to help a man to help himself than to encourage him to look for relief to other sources. The demoralizing effect of "doles" upon British labor since the war has been widely commented upon. Once accustomed to "doles," men do not want to work at all; and if security in old age were possible to all through pensions, there would be little incentive to ambition in youth and middle age.

5. The old-age pension would merely penalize the thrifty for the benefit of the improvident, since all would have to contribute to the taxes that such a system would impose, while only a few would benefit.

Writ of Prohibition Against County Court

Enjoins From Taking Action Monday on Petition to Annex School District No. 118 to No. 125.

A provisional writ of prohibition will be served on the county court at their session next Monday enjoining them from taking action on the petition requesting the annexation of school district No. 118 to district No. 125, known as the Conception Junction school district. This petition was to have come up before the county court at that time but the writ issued today will put off the matter until October 5 when the judges of the county court will show cause why they should not be absolutely prohibited and forbidden to hold cognizance of said petition.

The petition for suggestions for writ of prohibition was filed by Lawrence F. Growney and Thomas O'Brien and states the county court have no jurisdiction to act on the petition of annexation under and by virtue of the provisions of Section 11200 because it is unconstitutional and void and in violation of the Amendments to the Constitution of the United States and of the Constitution of the State of Missouri.

The matter of annexing school district No. 118 known as the Bristle Ridge district, to the Conception Junction school district No. 125, was presented to the county court the first of this month when citizens requesting the change alleging that the Bristle Ridge school was not maintaining an eight months school term, that the district was unorganized and that the usual school levy was not made.

FILES DEMAND FOR $27,600

A. M. SCHAFFER ASKS THIS FROM CASPER KAISER ESTATE.

FOR 19 YEARS WORK

Schaffer Claims Money for Caring, Nursing and Labor for Kaiser—Several Kaiser Heirs in Germany.

A demand for $27,600 for caring, nursing and labor on farm for 19 years has been filed in probate court here by Anton M. Schaffer of Clyde against the estate of Casper Kaiser. The claim will come up in probate court Monday.

According to the demand, Schaffer contends he is entitled to $100 a month for board, care, nursing, personal attention, clothing, medical expenses, washing and ironing, and labor on farm from February, 1905, to and including February, 1920, for the late Casper Kaiser. This period of time is 180 months. Then Schaffer asks for $200 a month from February, 1920 to and including February, 1924, making 48 months, for the same services.

Kaiser who was a single mand died at his home near Clyde on February 3, 1924. He was about 80 years old and for the last few years of his life was blind. He left as his heirs a sister, nephews and nieces in this country as well as several nephews and nieces at Westfalen, Germany. His estate was valued at about $30,000 according to the inventory taken.

Several of the heirs are contesting Schaffer's claim.

The administrators of the Kaiser estate are the Gillam-Jackson Loan and Trust Co., of Maryville and John E. Kaiser of St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., July 30.—Realizing that in the upbuilding of any community or city, the welfare of the farmer must be taken into vital consideration, the Chamber of Commerce here, through its Development Service bureau, is waging an active campaign in Missouri and Illinois to see that the tiller of the soil obtains the co-operation necessary to make him succeed.

"Farming is a big business undertaking" asserted Roy S. Rauschkolb, manager of the bureau" and until big business methods are applied to it, the farming problem will never be solved. The business and professional men must get together with the farmer and help him to better his products as well as to increase his output.

"The Development Service Bureau, which began operation six years ago, lends a willing hand to any community which is striving to organize. In helping to form new chambers of commerce, it keeps uppermost the idea that the farm organization must have a representation in any new development. We impress the banker, the merchant with the thought that if the tiller prospers, all make money; that unless the farmer profits, he is not a buyer but a borrower and can become bankrupt like a business man.

"St. Louis is interested in seeing its trade territory become more productive and prosperous for naturally the city will prosper in the same proportion. A good portion of the new trade thus created eventually will find its way into local channels, for an analysis reveals that about 93 per cent of our commercial activity develops outside the corporate limits.

Every town, no matter how small, has its own trade territory, which in nearly all cases, is chiefly agricultural. So the problem of advancement immediately becomes one of agriculture with its varied phases. It is not our plan to tell the farmer how to manage his crops as he would resent this. But we try to strengthen the hand of farm organizations, or perhaps help organize new ones, and get them to work in unison with other uplift agencies. In this manner progress is made toward the goal of maximum production per unit with the lowest possible cost. With orderly and scientific production, there naturally follows orderly marketing.

"Reynolds County, Missouri, is a typical case of what can be done. This district a little more than a year ago, realized its timber supply, which has been the chief source of revenue, was nearing the end. At best it could not last more than five years. What to do to put the waste, cutover land, into paying production was a problem.

"The Chamber was appealed to and sent its development bureau agent to the scene. With the aid of two railroads, the business men and farmers were called together and a definite program of agricultural development worked out. A Chamber of Commerce was organized. Fifty acres of land were used for demonstration purposes, one half being put in tomatoes and the other strawberries. As a result, this year farmers have contracted to supply four canneries with enough tomatoes to keep them going and have more than doubled, fruit farmers are beginning to develop and following in the wake of this, 14 other counties have organized the Ozarks Chamber of Commerce and are working harmoniously toward solving their problems and advertising to the world, the scenic beauty of their section of the state.

"In addition to these activities, our bureau is engaged in helping form corn clubs, junior clubs, calf clubs, dairy clubs, poultry clubs, farm mechanics clubs, home economic clubs, stock judging contests and other things which inspire farm children to higher goals.

"In recent months the bureau had aided materially in many localities the promotion of civic improvements, such as bond issues for new schools, waterworks, sewers or better highways. In fact where there is a constructive program looking toward the betterment of the community, our bureau welcomes a call for service.

Elmo Sunday School Picnic Held Last Week

Elmo Methodist Church
Prospect Hill
Edgar O. Wells, Minister.

Between forty and fifty persons young and old enjoyed the Sunday School picnic at Crystal Lake, College Springs, last Thursday, and almost half as many were much disappointed because they were unable to attend. Swimming, boating, and fishing were much in fashion, especially among the youngsters, but all things as well as days, have an end, and after a great supper, consisting of such things as hungry boys and girls, as well as grownups enjoy, and more swimming, home again, tired, but thankful to our Father, and everybody who contributed to our happiness.

Fine congregations prove that our hot weather programs are a fine drawing card, and that one by the Young People's Bible Class was no exception, and highly appreciated by all who were there.

An Evening With Peter Cartwright, the Backwoods Preacher, next Sunday night will be in charge of the Adult Women's Bible Class, with good music, from voice and instrument, will help to make it a success.

Sunday School at 10:00 a. m., and a sermon at the regular hour for worship, on Christianity. A Farce? a Tragedy? or a Great Success?

If you are not under obligation elsewhere, Come.

On Eastern Trip.

C. where they will visit at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. T. Clayton. The former is a brother of Mrs. Bell. They will then visit relatives and friends in New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. They expect to be gone about a month. While they are away Mr. and Mrs. Truman Clayton will occupy the Bell home south of town.

His Last Word Of Prayer

This is the interior of the little church at Dayton, Tenn., where William Jennings Bryan attended worship for the last time and for the last time in public praised his voice in prayer. The cross marks the pulpit occupied by the Great Commoner.

with polar bears and with frail boats battling whales is also holding attention through the movivized diary being shown.

But neither of these thrilling expeditions is just up to the standard of accomplishment that Snow and his son hope to set.

"Every couple of years, there comes word of ape-tailed men from the South Seas," says Snow. "To date, though, nothing corroborative has been brought out by several expeditions going in search of these tribes.

Seek Whole Tribe.

"With the evolution question now almost a national issue, there is more than usual interest in tail-bearing humans. We have been gathering information for years, and we believe we shall find not mere individuals possessed of caudal appendages, but an entire tribe so distinguished or marked."

And the birds that build their own incubators?

"It is the calayan or moundbuilder a rare variety of the megapod species that is scattered through the Pacific island districts," explains the curator-explorer.

"They are the size of turkeys and somewhat of the same order. They live in colonies, and even build a community incubator to hatch their young.

"With their powerful feet, the females build huge mounds of mud and vegetable matter—mound 60 feet deep in diameter and five or six feet high. The top of these heaps are hollowed, so they will catch rainfall.

How Heat Is Supplied.

"The eggs are carefully placed in holes dug under the mound. Rain starts decay of the vegetable matter in the mound, and the resulting fermentation generates heat to hatch the eggs.

"Sanitation is also known to these birds. Each night they return to the mound, dig out the eggs for a short airing, then carefully replace and cover them, always with the air chamber uppermost.

"In this manner, the entire incubation process is carried out. When the young emerge from the shell and clamber out of the mound, they are well fledged and can even fly a little."

These are but two of the rarities the Snows seek to bag with gun or camera during their next expedition. But the ape-tailed man and the bird who knows chemistry are sure to be the stars of the whole collection.

by the growth of a great co-operative system in England, by a Labor triumph in English politics, by a people reacting against age-old traditions, customs, beliefs, systems and environment. The church of England has no hold upon those people, he said. They have not run amuck. They are not bitterly antagonistic to the Church of England. They have simply turned their backs upon it as a functionless institution which has, "handed them a stone when they asked for bread." Religion they have. But they seek to apply the teachings of the Christ to the needs of their kind. "They seek to lift civilization, not the ox or the ass, from rut into which it has fallen," in the words of Dr. Wilson.

"Civilization cannot go on," he said, "unless we place a new light and interpretation on life." And quoting he said, "Make no more giants, Lord, elevate the race." And as he alone, probably could do it, he pictured humanity in, "the ditch of false philosophy." All this has become apparent to the common people of England, and more particularly, to the labor of England. It has grown on them. It has compelled them. It has at last brought about its reaction. And as they see it so must civilization in general see it in the end. The accomplishments of the Labor party in recent years is but a manifestation of the reaction. The movement has been checked time and again. It has been resented, punished, blackmailed, persecuted. But on and on it has gone. Such is the fate of every new move. The Christ, the followers of the Christ, John Wesley, Martin Luther, George Fox—every leader who has dared life has his hand against existing order has shared the same fate, he pointed out.

These people are not fanatics, he said. "They have cool heads and warm hearts." They are not atheistic. They are not an English reflection of Red Russia. They are men determined upon bettering civilization, relentless but not cruel and breaking down the old order of things only as it opposes the apparent pathway to the advancement of all. "They are more interested in this life than in the next," the speaker said. And after all, Jesus came upon this earth, not to increase the population of a city called heaven, but to bring peace on earth and good will to men"——"They used to tell us that all things come to him who waits. It's a beautiful lie. Things have not come to us and the Lord knows that we've done waiting enough. All things wait for Him who comes and these people are coming and are getting all things."

And having presented the picture of things as they have been and are, he turned his attention to a discussion of the English Labor party. He told of its growth. He told of its capturing the upper hand in English government in 1923 when 175 labor representatives were elected to the English parliament. He told of the following election. While Labor was defeated then, he said, it was nevertheless a victor. Its defeat was accomplished only by the coalition of other factions with sole intent of upsetting Labor's power. The growth in the Labor ranks and representation was greater. In 20 years or less, he says, that party will have complete control if its growth increases as it has increased since 1923. And there is nothing to indicate that such will not be the case.

He told of the economic conditions in that country, which "cannot raise enough wheat to make breakfast pancake for its people." He told of the political divisions. The house of commons is the most democratic in the world he said. The house of lords, he titled as a political appendix which will some day be cut off and cast into oblivion for all time. The same thing will happen to the crown, he predicts, particularly, if that crown is found in the way at all. At this time, he stated, the house of lords dare not veto a bill from the house of commons; the king dare not.

He next turned to the accomplishments of the Labor Party. He told of co-operative enterprises which are taking the millions formerly had by the moneyed class, and distributing such wealth to the common people. He cited the fact that through such co-operative measures, it is possible there bread made of American for English people to buy bread wheat, at a cost 50 per cent less than the American citizen pays for it in this country where the wheat was grown. He stated that 88 1-2 per cent of the wealth of England is in the hands of 2 1-2 per cent of the population. Such things will be changed, he predicted. He spoke for the voice of women in political and economic arrangements.

In the presentation of novelty numbers, the Rainbow Orchestra was successful. Miss Monica Horka is a fair violinist and pleased the audience. Sue Ernest Hewling, the leader, is undoubtedly an able whistler. Effects produced were sometimes quite beyond apparent possibility with the instrumentation at hand. Miss Hewling can play many things, including a musical saw and a miniature trombone. All of her following is blessed similarly but to a less marked degree. They are entertainers, not musicians. They pleased their hearers. That is all which is required.

Explorer Will Visit South Sea Country

Oakland, Calif., July 28.—There's a land where humans have tails and birds know chemistry and build their own incubators.

And H. A. Snow, curator of the Oakland Museum and world famous as a big game hunter and wild life movie producer, is preparing an expedition to that region, to stalk both in their natural habitat and, through movies, tell the world about them.

Snow's big game hunt through Africa, where he successfully shot with guns and camera, is still attracting attention as a cinema thriller. Stampeding elephant herds and chasing giraffes in in flivvers were some of the high spots.

Thrills in the Arctic.

The trip of Snow and his son, Sydney, through the arctic regions, replete with discovery of bodies of long lost explorers, with hand-to-hand fights

CLEARMONT

The welcome rain is here, for which we are very grateful. We believe the corn, pastures and gardens will be safe—now its raining, really, how good it sounds.

Some of Mr. and Mrs. Price's children have been sick the last week but are better; no other sickness we are glad to report.

About forty people took the 5:30 excursion train for K. C. Sunday morning, a very good time reported.

The W. C. T. U. was splendidly entertained at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Curren July 24th. Mrs. L. F. Harmon leader. Those on the program did justice to their subjects. The program was too full to give a synopsis of here but the main topics discussed were on the peace question, the first use of the flag, where and by whom. Other patriotic subjects were discussed freely and intelligently After the program ice cream, cake and a lovely fruit beverage was served by the hostess; one lovely feature was a most beautiful boquet of gladiolias, presented by the Carpenter sisters.

The ladies of the M. E. Church met at the church last Wednesday and made all plans for their Thanksgiving Bazaar. A dinner, a real dinner will be served at that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Harman, Pauline Eva and Elaine spent Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McDermott. They can't report anything but a most enjoyable day—the dinner and visit will long be remembered by the Harmon's as one of their best, and by the way, they were invited to "come again."

Prairie Temple people met at the church Tuesday for the purpose of cleaning and repairing the building—a social gathering will be held there Friday night, August 7th. How good it would be if every community would do the same, we see too many abandoned churches. If you have such in your community, have a get-together meeting, take your dinner, clean the house, cut the weeds. Then Sunday have Sunday School, dont leave it to your neighbor, you go and take the family like we used to do.

Sunday school every Sunday in each church; preaching next Sunday in the Methodist church and Christian churches—at the Baptist next, come.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, July 30.—Sharp losses were sustained in corn in today's session on the Board of Trade. July wheat, acting alone, had a fractional advance while distant futures slumped.

Oats were lower.

General liquidation carried future wheat down sharply early but in a rally caused by short recovery, much of the losses were regained.

Corn took a drastic slump on the beneficial rains that visited the main belt over night.

Oats changes were small and generally reflected market sentiment.

Selling in deferred options, weakened the provisions list.

WAS NOT FIT TO DO HER WORK

Dreadful Condition of Mrs. Fullerton's Health Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Clearfield, Pa.—"I cannot begin to tell you how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me in every way. Before taking it I couldn't stand on my feet without pains running all through my whole body from my waist down, just like threads pulling. I was not fit to do any work. My mother got me to try the Vegetable Compound and I have found great benefit, and I not only recommend it for such troubles, but to build up the whole system. I have used it for most everything that gets wrong with me. When I begin to feel nervous and irritable I don't stop long in getting a bottle of the Vegetable Compound if I haven't got one in the house. It gives a fine appetite and makes a new woman of me. You may use this testimonial in my own town or anywhere else, and I will answer any letters I receive." — Mrs. RUSH FULLERTON, 525 S. 2nd Street, Clearfield, Pa.

Champion Threshers.

(Hopkins Journal)

Harley Morehouse and Henry Demott threshed 1251 bushels of oats for J. R. King & Son Monday forenoon that made 50 bushels per acre. The following day they threshed over 2300 bushels of oats including those for Mike Brown that made 47 bushels. This was done with a twenty inch separator in a ten hour run, including three moves, and surely proves that a little threshing machine can do its part.

BATTLE FOR CITY HONORS

BARMANN'S AND MERCHANTS PLAY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

PLAY NEXT SUNDAY

Game Will Be Played on Winner-Take-All Proposition—Announce Line-ups of Opposing Teams

A winner-take-all game with the city championship at stake, is the treat in store for the baseball fans of Maryville on Sunday afternoon.

The Maryville Merchants and the Barmann Auto nine, who have been rivals all season for the honors of Maryville, have been matched. Negotiations have been progressing all season for a contest between the two strong baseball machines and chesty taunts have been flung back and forth between the opposing players. The game was finally arranged upon the proposition that the winner of the contest be entitled to receive the entire gate receipts.

A rumor afloat in town today reports that the Ford mechanics covet the city title so strong that they are importing a foreign pitcher to hurl against the Maryville Merchants. This rumor is not sustained by the manager of the Barmann team, who announced this morning that Weiderholt and Madden would compose the Fordite's battery.

The Merchants battery will be Buhler and Tobin with Laughlin in the pen ready for relief hurling.

The nine-inning battle between the two teams should provide real excitement for the local fans. Both teams have powerful batting strength and classy defense. Buhler and Wiederholt are consistant pitchers and the game may develop into a pitcher's duel.

The teams will line-up as follows, according to the managers of the two teams:

BARMANN		MERCHANTS
Madden	c	Tobin
Wiederholt	p	Buhler
Kegin	1b	Tilson
Scheiber	2b	Waller
L. Sceiber	ss	Tobin
Bagby	3b	Meyers
P. Scheiber	lf	Dixon
Booth	cf	Still
Bogby	rf	Mayes

The game will be played at the old Fair grounds.

FOURTH BANDIT IS CAPTURED

DRAKE HOTEL ROBBER GETS BUT LITTLE FOR RISK.

FIND SCOTT CLUE?

Postal Card Found In Captive's Pocket Is Thought To Have Come From Missing Brother.

Chicago, July 30—James Wood, 24, the fourth of the bandit gang of five which raided the Drake Hotel yesterday and shot down Frank Rodke, assistant cashier, in cold blood, was captured at Jefferson Park Hospital early today and confessed his part in one of the most spectacular crimes in years.

For his part in the robbery, which cost the lives of two of his companions and the capture of a third, Wood received a bullet wound himself and $20. The fifth member of the gang got away with $3,500.

A possible trace of Robert Scott, missing brother of Russell Scoot, thrice saved from the gallows, was seen by police in the finding of a postal card in the pocket of Wood's coat. The card read:

"Billy, your letter just received. As yet, your suitcase has not arrived. Had a letter from Miller the other day. He is at home in Detroit. Let me hear from you when you get to Chicago. (Signed) R. Scott."

Wood asserted the card evidently belonged to the fifth member of the bandit gang.

Asks Special Session to Repeal Provision

Senator Whitecotton Wants Legislature to Convene to Revise Salaries Under Recent Decision.

Jefferson City, Mo., July 30.—Senator James H. Whitecotton of Paris, Mo., conferred with Governor Sam A. Baker yesterday relative to calling a special session of the legislature to enact new statute regulating salaries of prosecuting attorneys and county superintendents of schools.

The senator declared that the situation arising from the need of such new measures is acute in Monroe County since the supreme court recently held that under the existing statutes prosecuting attorneys are entitled to increased salaries, as a result of increases in the number of voters in the counties. Prosecuting attorneys in a number of counties have received back salary under the ruling.

Senator Whitecotton called attention to the fact that Lee D. Ash, former superintendent of schools of Monroe County, recently filed suit at Paris for $750 which he claims is due him as back salary as a result of the technical doubling of the county's population by the entrance of women voters. Salaries of county school superintendents, like those of county attorneys, are based upon population computed upon a basis of votes cast. The senator favors fixing the compensation of the county prosecutors by population instead of by votes cast.

Governor Baker told Senator Whitecotton he had been observing the situation and would investigate further, but it is understood the chief executive offered no encouragement toward the matter of calling a special session of the general assembly. The governor does not favor special sessions of the legislature, it is understood unless a crisis should arise. The expense of such a session would be considerable, he has pointed out, and after calling the session he would be powerless to adjourn it, with the result that it might run for weeks.
